

VIVA VINO!

WINE AND FOOD ECSTASY

Most people don't think of Greenville, South Carolina, as wine country, and the Palmetto State makes better beer than vino. But Greenville is home to some fabulous chefs and to people who believe in drinking great wine for a great cause: Every September star chef Tyler Florence, musician Edwin McCain, and local restaurateurs join forces to create Euphoria, a wine and food weekend that raises funds for charities across the state. Sommeliers and celebrity chefs host tastings and workshops, local restaurants show their prowess with multicourse wine dinners, and live concerts—often from Grammy-nominated artists—supply the background music. The four-day event kicks off with the Taste of the South and ends with the Culinary Cook-off. It all takes place in downtown Greenville; with rivers and waterfalls streaming through its center, this is one of the most charming historic districts in the state. For more information, go to www.euphoriagreenville.com.

MONDAY

JULY

2010

26